

Access Land

Access Land: public access for pedestrians

Radstock Waterside

About Access Land...

This Access Land is part of the new access created by the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000. The Act does not introduce a 'right to roam' on any land, but introduces new access on defined Access Land. Existing access including any public rights of way is not affected. Access Land may occasionally be closed to the public. When this happens, signs showing the times and dates that restrictions apply should be displayed.

On Access Land you can: carry out most activities on foot, including walking, running, climbing, bird watching and picnicking.

On Access Land you cannot: climb over or through walls, fences or gates, use a metal detector or remove anything from the area (for instance plants). There is no new right to ride or lead a horse, cycle, or bring any vehicle onto the land.

Please take proper care of yourself and any children or dogs accompanying you on Access Land. The occupier is not liable for anyone injured on natural features of the landscape, such as rocks, trees, rivers, streams, ditches or ponds.

Please follow the Countryside Code:

Be Safe – plan ahead and follow any signs
Leave gates and property as you find them
Protect plants and animals, and take your litter home
Keep dogs under close control
Consider other people

Please control your dog. Dogs can disturb wildlife (for example ground-nesting birds) as well as livestock. On Access Land, between 1st March and 31st July dogs must be kept on a short fixed lead, as well as any other time when livestock are near. Please clean up after your dog and dispose of any mess responsibly.
